PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR APPOINTMENT OF COUNSEL

Comes Now, Emanuel Thomas Newman, Pro-Se plaintiff (herein after Newman), and submits this motion for the appointment of counsel.

In support thereof, Newman states the following:

- 1) Newman is the plaintiff in the above captioned civil action at bar at this time.
- 2) Newman is not currently, nor was he previously represented by an attorney in the matter now before the court.
- 3) On April 23, 2001, this court granted Newman's motion to proceed in forma pauperis, and set up a payment plan for Newman to meet his obligation to pay the filing fee. That fee was paid in full.
- 4) Newman is a lay individual who has no formal training in the numerous facets of the law. Newman has never litigated a case in a courtroom while acting as his own attorney.
- 5) Newman, who has a total of 19¢ in his inmate account cannot afford the necessary books to instruct him on how to take his case to trial. He was blessed to have been able to carry his case this far and make it pass summary judgment.

6) A trained United States Attorney is a serious professional who knows his or her job well. Newman doesn't want to make it all the way into the courtroom after all that he has been put through in order to to have litigated his case this far, only to be slam-dunked by a professional.

7) Newman understands that he has no right to have counsel appointed in a civil action, and therefore, he falls back on the argument that his case will not get the full effect of a winning defense, with him acting as his own attorney (A man who has himself for a lawyer has a fool for an attorney).

Therefore, Newman placeses himself before this court as a lay-man who knows nothing of the law, and moves this court to Grant this motion for appointment of counsel, and or Hybrid counsel, and or any and all other relief deemed fit in this matter.

Date: 2/10/03

Respectfully submitted
